Forecast For Northeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Thursday 01 Apr 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Friday feeling chilly but mainly dry.

This Evening and Tonight:
The wind will become light and clear periods will develop, especially inland, leading to a chilly night. There is a chance of a slight frost in some rural locations. Minimum temperature 0 deg C (32 deg F).

Friday:
Starting chilly with sunny spells. Through the day cloud will build, but still with some sunny spells for most. Feeling chilly, especially along the coast where a brisk breeze develops. Maximum temperature 9 deg C (48 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Saturday, largely dry with variable cloud, but also sunny spells. Sunday cold start then bright morning, before rain, hill snow and strengthening winds spread south. Monday cold, windy, wintry showers.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.